

PROLIFE FACTS

American psychologist Dr David Reardon was in New Zealand in late October. He is one of the leading researchers into the effects of abortion on women. His book "The Jericho Plan: Breaking Down the Walls which Prevent Post-Abortion Healing" focuses on the unique plight of post-abortive women in Christian churches, nursing their "secret" guilt and despair.

In his book Dr Reardon writes: "Our goal is simple. We want to create a society which is more conducive to post-abortion healing.

"We want to make our society both more pro-life and more pro-women. And the place to begin this revolution is within the churches. Who better than our pastors can, and should, promote healing and reconciliation?"

"Who better than our pastors can help people better understand themselves and others? We need to reach out to these people with a message of hope and understanding, because they fear condemnation and judgment."

Half page
95 x 128.5

PROLIFE FACTS

Author of "The Jericho Plan: Breaking Down the Walls which Prevent Post-Abortion Healing", US psychologist Dr Reardon writes: "We want to make our society both more pro-life and more pro-women. And the place to begin this revolution is within the churches. Who better than our pastors can, and should, promote healing and reconciliation?"

Eighth page

Quarter page
95 x 64

PROLIFE FACTS

American psychologist Dr David Reardon was in New Zealand in late October. His book "The Jericho Plan: Breaking Down the Walls which Prevent Post-Abortion Healing" focuses on the unique plight of post-abortive women in Christian churches, who are often suffering in secret.

In his book Dr Reardon writes: "Our goal is simple. We want to create a society which is more conducive to post-abortion healing. "We want to make our society both more pro-life and more pro-women. And the place to begin this revolution is within the churches. Who better than our pastors can, and should, promote healing and reconciliation?"

PROLIFE FACTS

Author of "The Jericho Plan: Breaking Down the Walls which Prevent Post-Abortion Healing", US psychologist Dr Reardon writes: "We want to make our society both more pro-life and more pro-women. And the place to begin this revolution is within the churches. Who better than our pastors can, and should, promote healing and reconciliation?"

Banner
25 x 128.5