

PROLIFE FACTS

Have you ever wondered why New Zealand has an aging population?

The Government is being pressured to raise the eligibility age for national superannuation from 65 to 67, because there are insufficient younger people to pay the taxes that will support more pensioners.

There is a factor that is never mentioned. Since the first abortion clinic opened in April 1974, there have been 409,221 abortions recorded up to December 2009. That is the equivalent of the following cities and towns disappearing from the map of NZ: Whangarei, New Plymouth, Gisborne, Wanganui, Palmerston North, Nelson, Greymouth, Hokitika, Ashburton, Timaru, Gore and Queenstown and Lakes.

The baby boys and girls aborted in 1974 would now be 36. Many would be married with families and building a future and paying taxes. Their loss significantly impacts upon the financial contribution remaining New Zealanders must pay.

Freedom of choice has public and economic consequences.

Half page
95 x 128.5

PROLIFE FACTS

Since the first abortion clinic opened in April 1974, there have been 409,221 abortions recorded up to December 2009. Not surprisingly, the Government is being pressured to raise the eligibility age for national superannuation from 65 to 67. There are now insufficient younger people to pay the taxes that will support more pensioners.

Eighth page
47.5 x 128.5

Quarter page
95 x 64

PROLIFE FACTS

Since the first abortion clinic opened in April 1974, there have been 409,221 abortions recorded up to December 2009. That is the equivalent of the following cities and towns disappearing from the map of NZ: Whangarei, New Plymouth, Gisborne, Wanganui, Palmerston North, Nelson, Greymouth, Hokitika, Ashburton, Timaru, Gore and Queenstown and Lakes.

It is not surprising that the Government is being pressured to raise the eligibility age for national superannuation from 65 to 67, because there are insufficient younger people to pay the taxes that will support more pensioners.

PROLIFE FACTS

Since the first abortion clinic opened in April 1974, there have been 409,221 abortions recorded up to December 2009. Not surprisingly, the Government is being pressured to raise the eligibility age for national superannuation from 65 to 67. There are now insufficient younger people to pay the taxes that will support more pensioners.

Banner
25 x 128.5