

PROLIFE FACTS

The world of popular song and music has a great attraction for young and old, including even recycled hits by “oldies” like the Rolling Stones. But pop music also has its dark side with lyrics themed to abuse, violence, drugs, disrespect for moral values— and even despair.

Pro-lifers could well ask: How to penetrate this area of Life? One branch of Voice for Life decided to answer the question by challenging singers, to turn their creative talents to composing songs themed to respect for life.

Knowing that they were taking a risk they launched a national prolife songwriting contest, booked an auditorium in Tauranga, took on commitments for sound, lighting, stage management, etcetera, $10,000 in all, and somewhat nervously awaited the result. 10 days before closing date, just three entries. Facing failure? No, for then came the rush, with 45 entries from around N.Z., one from Australia, then a great Finals concert that included entries by both Australian and NZ Country Songwriters of the Year. The ProLife Songwriting Contest was a great success. The 4th Contest will be held in Auckland in 2011. Finalists will perform on stage in front of a live audience on December 3rd. Put this date in your diary! For entry form and conditions visit <http://voiceforlife.bravehost.com/index.html>

Half page
95 x 128.5

PROLIFE FACTS

There is a real opportunity for pro-lifers to put a positive, life-affirming message into song by entering the Voice for Life Song Writing Contest. This national pro-life songwriting contest is now in its 4th year. The 2011 finals will be held in Auckland on December 3rd in front of a live audience. For entry form and conditions visit <http://voiceforlife.bravehost.com/index.html>

Eighth page
47.5 x 128.5

PROLIFE FACTS

The world of popular song and music has a great attraction for young and old, but it also has its dark side with some lyrics themed to abuse, violence, drugs, disrespect for moral values— and even despair. Pro-lifers could well ask: How to penetrate this area of Life?

One branch of Voice for Life answered the question by creating a national pro-life songwriting contest, through which they challenged singers to turn their talents to composing songs themed to respect for life.

The contest was a great success and now in its 4th year will be held in Auckland in 2011. Finalists will perform on stage in front of a live audience on December 3rd. Put this date in your diary! For entry form and conditions visit <http://voiceforlife.bravehost.com/index.html>

Quarter page
95 x 64

PROLIFE FACTS

There is a real opportunity for pro-lifers to put a positive, life-affirming message into song by entering the Voice for Life Song Writing Contest. This national pro-life songwriting contest is now in its 4th year. The 2011 finals will be held in Auckland on December 3rd in front of a live audience. For entry form and conditions visit <http://voiceforlife.bravehost.com/index.html>

Banner
25 x 128.5